Mr. John F. Remondi
President and Chief Executive Officer
Navient Solutions, LLC
123 Justison Street
Wilmington, DE 19801

Dear Mr. Remondi:

Americans are facing a crisis of student loan debt. Forty-three million student borrowers in the United States have more than $1.4 trillion in outstanding federal student loans.<sup>1</sup> As Chairs of Committees with oversight responsibilities over the student loan industry, we are concerned by reports that the Trump Administration has paid more than $1.7 billion in taxpayer money to Navient and other companies servicing these loans while failing to provide adequate oversight and shielding these companies from state and federal law enforcement.

Navient services $215 billion in federal student loans.<sup>2</sup> Reports indicate that improper practices by Navient and other servicers—including inaccurate determination of monthly payments, forbearance steering, and other actions—directly impact millions of Americans and have ripple effects on their families, communities, and the economy as a whole.<sup>3</sup>

On March 5, 2019, the Department of Education’s independent Office of Inspector General (OIG) released a report raising serious concerns about the Department’s oversight of student loan servicers. The report found that the Department had failed to establish policies and procedures to mitigate the “risk of servicer noncompliance” and had “rarely used available contract accountability provisions to hold servicers accountable.”<sup>4</sup>

<sup>3</sup> See, e.g., Complaint (Jan. 18, 2017), Consumer Financial Protection Bureau v. Navient, N.D. Cal. (3:17-cv-00101-RDM) (Navient has “routinely disregarded” its commitment to help borrowers find an appropriate and affordable repayment plan and has “instead steered borrowers experiencing long-term distress or hardship into forbearance”) (online at https://files.consumerfinance.gov/f/documents/201701\_cfpb\_Navient-Pioneer-Credit-Recovery-complaint.pdf).

<sup>4</sup> U.S. Department of Education, Office of Inspector General, Federal Student Aid: Additional Actions Needed to Mitigate the Risk of Servicer Noncompliance with Requirements for Servicing Federally Held Student

The situation does not appear to be getting better, despite the Department's claims of "significant ongoing improvements."<sup>5</sup> In fact, in the 18-month period following the OIG's audit, the Department took only two actions against loan servicers and recovered merely $2 million in contractual fees. This amount represented less than 0.12 percent of the $1.7 billion that Office of Federal Student Aid (FSA) budgeted for its servicing contracts across this period.<sup>6</sup> None of the $2 million recovered was returned to student borrowers.

Under the Trump Administration, the Department has also taken steps to obstruct federal and state investigations into student loan servicers. For example, in December 2017, the Department issued a policy memorandum to all student loan servicers, prohibiting servicers from responding directly to any investigative requests made by law enforcement organizations (LEOs) or regulators. The memo instead requires servicers to direct investigative requests to the Department.<sup>7</sup> However, the Department has not approved any disclosures of data to LEOs since the issuance of the December 2017 memo.<sup>8</sup>

In addition, on June 13, 2018, the Department further obstructed efforts to hold servicers accountable by publishing a notice in the Federal Register ending the Department's policy of collaboration with state law enforcement, stating, "The Department no longer intends to disclose any records" for use by other law enforcement agencies.<sup>9</sup>

The Department also unilaterally terminated two memoranda of understanding with the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau that were required by law and had facilitated the sharing of information to collaboratively oversee student loan servicers.<sup>10</sup>

For all these reasons, please provide the following documents and information by August 27, 2019. Unless otherwise noted, please provide responsive documents from January 20, 2017, to present:
