H.R. 4871, the TRIA Reform Act of 2014, extends the authorization for the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act (TRIA) through December 31, 2019. Originally enacted in 2002, TRIA established a temporary federal program that helped to maintain the availability of commercial property and casualty insurance and reinsurance for terrorism-related risks. As stated on Section 101 of the original legislation, the program was to be “a temporary Federal program that provides for a transparent system of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism, in order to—(1) protect consumers by addressing market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk; and (2) allow for a transitional period for the private markets to stabilize, resume pricing of such insurance, and build capacity to absorb any future losses, while preserving State insurance regulation and consumer protections.”

H.R. 4871 builds upon those purposes and reforms the program to better protect taxpayers from the financial risks that TRIA poses. H.R. 4871 accomplishes three goals: it (1) strengthens taxpayer protections and encourages private market participation without curtailing the program’s fundamental functions, (2) provides greater certainty and stability to the terrorism insurance market, and (3) prepares policymakers by realistically assessing the benefits and costs of the TRIA’s current framework.

To strengthen taxpayer protections and encourage private market participation, H.R. 4871 reduces the federal co-share for insured losses exceeding an insurer’s deductible, from 85 percent of insured losses today to 80 percent of insured losses by 2019. The co-share was last reduced in 2006, from 90 percent of insured losses in 2005 to 85 percent of insured losses. H.R 4871 also reduces taxpayer exposure by increasing over several years the program trigger, or threshold of certified losses after which federal payments begin, for acts of terrorism that do not include nuclear, biological, radiological, and or chemical (NBCR) agents. Beginning in 2016, H.R 4871 increases the trigger from $100 million to $500 million, in $100 million annual increments. The trigger was last increased in 2007, from $50 million in 2006 to $100 million.

To address concerns that the increased trigger could harm small insurers, H.R. 4871 authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to develop a process through regulation and in consultation with state insurance regulatory authorities that permits small insurers to opt out of the federal statutory requirement to make available terrorism risk insurance. Small insurers may request to opt out if they can demonstrate financial hardship or financial infeasibility of providing coverage for insured losses.

H.R. 4871 protects taxpayers by aligning the aggregate retention requirement with mandatory deductible amounts. Under current law, while individual insurers each are responsible for a deductible equal to 20 percent of their prior year’s direct earned premiums before they can receive federal assistance through the co-share mechanism, the losses for the insurance industry as a whole are capped at $27.5 billion in any given program year. That amount, known as the insurance marketplace aggregate retention amount, has remained constant since 2007, when it was roughly equal to 20 percent of the industry's total amount of direct earned premiums collected for 2006. H.R. 4871 sets the retention amount equal to the sum of the industry's deductibles, or 20 percent of the industry's direct earned premiums for the prior year, rather than a fixed number. Setting the retention amount in this way indexes it to the state of the insurance market, allowing the retention amount to increase or decrease in proportion to the total amount of premiums collected each program year.

To provide greater certainty and stability to the market, H.R. 4871 separates certified acts of terrorism into two categories: those that involve NBCR losses, which are inherently more difficult to model, and those that do not involve NBCR losses, for which the modeling is more developed. Because the modeling is less developed for the frequency and severity of NBCR events, H.R. 4871 retains the current program trigger of $100 million for acts of terrorism involving NBCR losses.

H.R. 4871 also provides more certainty in the certification process by giving the Secretary of Treasury up to 90 days after an event to provide a final determination whether it met the definition of an act of terrorism under the program, and whether it involved NBCR losses. To further expedite the payment of claims, H.R. 4871 requires the Secretary to issue a preliminary certification notice within 15 days of an event indicting whether it is expected to meet the definition of an act of terrorism under the program. H.R. 4871 also removes the current limitation that an event must result in $5 million in insured losses to be certified as an act of terrorism, which will allow the Secretary to base certification on the motivation underpinning the event rather than its scope.

To prepare policymakers by realistically assessing the benefits and costs of TRIA's current framework, H.R. 4871 eliminates TRIA's payment timing budget gimmick and adopts more realistic financing requirements for the recoupment of federal payments made under TRIA. In its 2007 reauthorization of TRIA, Congress added Section 103(e)(7)(E) to TRIA as a budget gimmick to meet Pay-As-You-Go requirements that new spending not increase projected deficits. Section 103(e)(7)(E) established specific repayment schedules that required recoupment within a short period of time, which are generally acknowledged as unrealistic and unworkable. H.R. 4871 ends the use of that budget gimmick beginning in Program Year 2015. In its place, H.R. 4871 provides that when federal payments are subject to recoupment, recoupment must begin no later than 18 months after the event. H.R. 4871 also increases the assessment rate for terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums required for the mandatory recoupment of federal payments from 133 percent to 150 percent of federal outlays. H.R. 4871 also requires that when terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums are used for the discretionary recoupment of federal payments, that they be not less than 3 percent of the annual premiums charged for property and casualty insurance coverage.

H.R. 4871 authorizes the Secretary of Treasury to collect data to enable Congress to better understand the terrorism risk insurance market and to conduct an annual study of the impact of TRIA on small insurers. H.R. 4871 requires the Congressional Budget Office and the Office of Management and Budget to study the feasibility of applying accrual accounting concepts to TRIA. H.R. 4871 requires the General Accountability Office to study (1) the feasibility of collecting premiums from insurers using the TRIA program before a terrorist act or loss occurs; (2) the feasibility of developing a capital reserve fund, as originally envisioned by this Committee in 2005; and (3) other nations’ practices for collecting premiums or creating capital reserve funds.

Title II of H.R. 4871 amends the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act to repeal the contingent conditions preventing the establishment of the National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers (NARAB). In its place, Title II establishes the NARAB as an independent nonprofit corporation to prescribe, on a multi-state basis, licensing and education requirements for insurance agents and brokers.

Title II is identical to H.R. 1155, the National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers Reform Act of 2013, introduced by Rep. Randy Neugebauer and passed by the House on September 10, 2013.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Before the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, insurers considered the risk of significant terrorism-related damage to be so remote that they did not separately charge for coverage against terrorism risk, nor did they separately consider terrorism risk in underwriting property and casualty insurance. Instead, insurers generally covered losses resulting from terrorist acts under commercial property and casualty insurance policies. Complacency about terrorism risk, however, changed considerably following these attacks, which resulted in insurance companies paying out $31.6 billion (approximately $41.4 billion in current dollars, adjusted for inflation) in terrorism-related claims.

After September 11, insurance and reinsurance companies began to view potential losses from terrorism as a new and significant risk for which they could not accurately model, given the uncertainty of the location, frequency, and severity of such acts. Without reliable insurance models, the potential cost of terrorism insurance skyrocketed, and many insurance and reinsurance companies began excluding terrorism coverage from their policies. These exclusions made terrorism coverage either unavailable or unaffordable for businesses and employers—some of whom were contractually or legally obliged to obtain it—thus jeopardizing economic growth, particularly in large commercial centers.

To fill this void, some industry participants and analysts advocated the creation of a temporary federal reinsurer program that would allow insurers to offer coverage for terrorism-related losses. Proponents of this federal reinsurer program argued that a temporary government backstop would give the insurance industry time to build accurate terrorism-risk models so that appropriately priced, privately-backed coverage could again be made available.

In response to these calls, Congress passed the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002 (Pub. L. No. 107–297), popularly known as TRIA, which established the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program, administered by the Treasury Department and designed to make terrorism insurance coverage more widely available. In 2010, the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (Pub. L. No. 111–203) established a Federal Insurance Office within the Treasury Department and instructed its Director to assist the Treasury Secretary in administering TRIA.

Under the original temporary program, the federal government and the insurance industry share the risk of loss from terrorist attacks for three years, after which the program would expire. TRIA mandates that insurers participate in the program and requires that insurers make terrorism coverage available in all commercial property and casualty insurance policies; however, it does not require that businesses purchase terrorism coverage. To date, the federal government has never made a payment under TRIA because no terrorist attacks have taken place that meet TRIA's loss-sharing criteria.

Congress originally designed TRIA as a temporary three-year federal backstop, with the expectation that the industry would eventually model and price for terrorism risk. In its November 19, 2001 report for the 107th Congress on H.R. 3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act, the Financial Services Committee wrote:

> the Committee believes that Congress must create the temporary program established by this legislation [H.R. 3210] to provide a bridge between today and the time when the private market has developed the mechanisms to provide terrorism risk coverage and reinsurance at reasonable cost and sufficient levels. The insurance industry in the past has demonstrated a remarkable resiliency in adapting to changing circumstances and, given time, will diversify and spread risks in such a way that they will be able to underwrite affordable terrorist risk insurance at a profit. Until that time comes, however, the Federal government can assist the industry by providing liquidity and creating a short-term industry risk spreading program.

> While there is a clear need to act to create this bridge, it is essential that it is done while providing the utmost protection for taxpayers.

In late 2005, Congress passed the Terrorism Risk Insurance Extension Act (Pub. L. No. 109–144), which extended TRIA for two years, through December 31, 2007. Congress extended TRIA because it found that the private market for terrorism insurance had not recovered as quickly as expected. The 2005 extension left much of the original TRIA program intact, but raised industry retention levels and reduced the insurance lines covered. For Program Year 2007, the act increased TRIA's program trigger to $100 million in aggregate industry losses and an individual insurer's deductible to 20 percent of premiums before the federal government shares 85 percent of the insured losses.

Despite the 2005 extension—or as some critics have argued because of it—a private market for terrorism insurance failed to develop. In 2007, with TRIA scheduled to expire for a second time, Congress passed H.R. 2761, the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2007 (Pub. L. No. 110–160). H.R. 2761 extended the TRIA program for seven years, through December 31, 2014. The legislation failed to include any reforms that encouraged private markets to stabilize, resume pricing terrorism insurance, or build capacity to absorb future losses. Instead, the legislation held the program's trigger, deductible, and co-share amounts at their 2007 levels through 2014. The legislation expanded TRIA, by adding domestic terrorism coverage to TRIA, which had previously covered only acts committed on behalf of a foreign person or interests. It also clarified TRIA's annual liability cap so that insurers were not responsible for losses exceeding $100 billion in any program year, and instituted the use of new budget gimmicks to affect the timing and amount of insurers' mandatory surcharge and recoupment amounts.

TRIA's authorization will expire on December 31, 2014. Although the Financial Services Committee has received testimony that there remains much capacity within insurance and reinsurance industries to cover greater portions of terrorism risk, the failure to include any reforms in the 2007 reauthorization have led many to believe that the industry has not yet developed the systems and products necessary for the terrorism-risk insurance market to function without a TRIA backstop.

While there may currently be a need for a federal backstop against acts of terrorism that cannot be modeled and whose size significantly affects the economy, continuing the program in its current form raises several concerns. Some critics of the program have pointed out that the TRIA extensions have dramatically expanded a federal program that was supposed to be temporary. Others note that government-provided terrorism reinsurance under TRIA has inhibited the return of private-sector terrorism insurance. And although the program has never been used, TRIA's potential post-event cost to taxpayers, which could total tens of billions of dollars or more, has also raised concerns.

In September 19, 2013, testimony before the Financial Services Committee on TRIA, Dr. Gordon Woo, Catastrophist for Risk Management Solutions, stated that insurance companies have had time to adjust to the post-September 11 view of terrorism risk. Dr. Woo testified that:

In 2002, when the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act (TRIA) was introduced, and subsequently, when TRIA was reauthorized in 2005 and 2007, some attention was given to terrorism insurance risk models, but experience was still too limited for them to be accorded much weight. Now, in September 2013, with a doubling of experience since 2001, terrorism insurance risk modeling has attained a level of capability, validation and maturity to make a more notable contribution to the discussion over the future of TRIA.

In its FY 2015 budget proposal, the Obama Administration called for “programmatic reforms [to TRIA] to limit taxpayer exposure and achieve cost neutrality.” The Administration’s budget proposal endorsed several of the reforms in the TRIA Reform Act, including changes to “the threshold for a certified terrorist event,” and to “the loss-sharing percentages for the Government and covered firms after the deductible is exceeded.” Emphasizing the need for a market solution, the Administration’s budget proposal stated that its objective over the longer term is a “full transition of the program to the private sector.”

The Obama Administration’s calls for reforming TRIA are not new. The previous administration also called upon Congress to reform TRIA to strengthen taxpayer protections and encourage more private market participation. In a June 30, 2005 letter to the Financial Services Committee, then-Treasury Secretary John Snow wrote:

> [the] continuation of the program in its current form is likely to hinder the further development of the insurance market by crowding out innovation and capacity building.

Any extension of the program should recognize several key principles, including the temporary nature of the program, the rapid expansion of private market development (particularly for insurers and reinsurers to grow capacity), and the need to significantly reduce taxpayer exposure. The administration would accept an extension only if it includes a significant increase to $500 million of the event size that triggers coverage, increases the dollar deductibles and percentage co-payments.

After fourteen years and two extensions, any further extension of the TRIA must include significant reforms that encourage the insurance industry to improve its modeling for acts of terrorism, to build its capacity to meet its financial obligations after an act of terrorism without government assistance, and to develop systems and products for a private terrorism insurance market that is not dependent on TRIA. H.R. 4871, the TRIA Reform Act of 2014, furthers those goals and better protects taxpayers against the tens of billions of dollars of risk they now bear through the program.

Hearings

Committee Consideration

The Committee on Financial Services met in open session on June 19–20, 2014 to consider H.R. 4871, ordering the same to be reported favorably to the House with an amendment on June 20 by a vote of 32 ayes to 27 nays.

Committee Votes

Clause 3(b) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives requires the Committee to list the record votes on the motion to report legislation and amendments thereto. Those votes were as follows:

1. An amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Ranking Member Waters and Rep. Capuano to replace the bill’s text with a 10-year clean reauthorization, and for other purposes, was not agreed to by a vote of 27 ayes to 31 nays (Recorded Vote No. 83).

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,

Hon. Jeb Hensarling,
Chairman, Committee on Financial Services,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 4871, the TRIA Reform Act of 2014.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Susan Willie, who can be reached at 226–2860.

Sincerely,

DOUGLAS W. ELMENDORF.

H.R. 4871—TRIA Reform Act of 2014

Summary: H.R. 4871 would extend the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act (TRIA) for five years—through calendar year 2019—and, in cer-
The Terrorism Risk Insurance Act, Public Law 107–297, was enacted on November 2, 2002. It was extended on December 22, 2005, upon enactment of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Extension Act of 2005 (P.L. 109–144). On December 26, 2007, the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2007 (P.L. 110–160) extended the program again. In this estimate, CBO refers to the original Act as subsequently amended, as TRIA.

The bill also would establish the National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers (NARAB) and authorize it to license producers of insurance (mostly agents and brokers) to operate in multiple states. Finally, the bill would require several new studies of various aspects of the terrorism insurance program.

Considering both the direct spending and revenue effects of the bill, CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 4871 would increase budget deficits by about $500 million over the 2015–2024 period. Changes in federal revenues and spending, however, would continue beyond 2024; CBO estimates that after taking into account all revenues and direct spending, enacting H.R. 4871 would lead to a small reduction in deficits over time.

Title I would reauthorize the TRIA program, which requires insurance firms that sell commercial property and casualty insurance to offer clients insurance coverage for damages caused by terrorist attacks by foreign or domestic interests.

Under TRIA, the federal government would help insurers cover losses in the event of a terrorist attack under certain conditions, and would impose assessments on the insurance industry to recover all or a portion of any federal payments. The program is currently set to expire at the end of calendar year 2014; no federal payments have been made under the program since its inception in 2002.

There is no reliable way to predict how much insured damage terrorists might cause, if any, in any year. Rather, CBO’s estimate of the cost of financial assistance provided under the bill represents an expected value of payments from the program—a weighted average that reflects industry experts' opinions of the probability of various outcomes ranging from zero damages up to very large damages resulting from possible future terrorist attacks. The expected value can be thought of as the amount of an insurance premium that would be necessary to just offset the government’s expected losses from providing this insurance, although firms do not pay any upfront premium for the federal assistance available under TRIA.

Title II of H.R. 4871 would establish the NARAB; it would allow insurance producers who join the organization to obtain a license to act as a producer in any state other than their home state by meeting the NARAB’s eligibility requirements and paying certain fees.

CBO estimates that enacting the bill would increase direct spending for federal assistance under TRIA and spending by the NARAB by $3.0 billion over the 2015–2024 period.

CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 4871 also would increase revenues. The bill would direct the Department of the Treasury to recoup some or all of the costs of providing financial assistance under TRIA through taxes imposed on certain insurance policyholders. CBO expects that spending for financial assistance to insurers would be offset (on a cash basis) by an increase in revenues. In ad-

1The Terrorism Risk Insurance Act, Public Law 107–297, was enacted on November 2, 2002. It was extended on December 22, 2005, upon enactment of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Extension Act of 2005 (P.L. 109–144). On December 26, 2007, the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2007 (P.L. 110–160) extended the program again. In this estimate, CBO refers to the original Act as subsequently amended, as TRIA.
When excise taxes and other types of “indirect” taxes are imposed on goods and services, they tend to reduce income for workers or business owners in the taxed industry and others throughout the economy. Consequently, revenue derived from existing “direct” tax sources—such as individual and corporate income taxes and payroll taxes—will also be reduced. To approximate that effect, CBO and the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation apply an offset when estimating the net revenue that legislation imposing some form of indirect tax is expected to generate. The amount of the offset ranges from 25.2 percent in 2015 to 26.2 percent in 2024.

Enacting the legislation would lead to additional spending of $250 million and additional revenues of $1 billion after 2024, CBO estimates. Thus the estimated net budgetary savings after 2024 would be slightly larger than the estimated net budgetary cost between 2015 and 2024.

The bill would impose intergovernmental and private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) by extending and expanding some requirements on insurers and policyholders, including the payment of surcharges. State, local, or tribal governments could be required to pay a surcharge as purchasers of property and casualty insurance, but CBO estimates that the aggregate cost to public entities of complying with those mandates would probably fall below the annual threshold established in UMRA ($76 million for intergovernmental mandates in 2014, adjusted annually for inflation). CBO estimates that the aggregate cost to private insurers and policyholders to comply with those mandates would exceed UMRA’s annual threshold for private-sector mandates ($152 million in 2014, adjusted annually for inflation) in each year policyholders pay a surcharge.

Estimated cost to the Federal Government: The estimated budgetary effect of H.R. 4871 is shown in the following table. We estimate that enacting the bill would increase direct spending by $3.0 billion and increase revenues by $2.5 billion over the 2015–2024 period. The costs of this legislation fall within budget function 370 (commerce and housing credit).

Notes: TRIA = Terrorism Risk Insurance Act; NARAB = National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers. Components may not sum to totals because of rounding. *CBO also estimates that implementing H.R. 4871 would increase discretionary costs by $2 million over the 2015–2019 period.
Basis of estimate for Title I (TRIA): Title I would extend the TRIA program for five years, through December 31, 2019. CBO estimates that enacting the extension would increase direct spending by $2.5 billion and revenues by $2.0 billion over the 2015–2024 period. While this estimate reflects CBO’s best judgment on the basis of available information, the cost of the TRIA program is a function of inherently unpredictable future terrorist attacks. As such, actual costs are likely to vary significantly from the estimated amounts. Such costs could be either higher or lower than the expected-value estimates provided for each year.

Terrorism Risk Insurance Act under current law

The Terrorism Risk Insurance Act provides financial assistance to commercial property and casualty insurers for losses above certain thresholds (illustrated in Figure 1 on the next page) caused by terrorist attacks by individuals acting on behalf of foreign or domestic interests. For such assistance to be provided, the Secretary of the Treasury must certify that a terrorist attack has occurred in the United States or other specified locations. TRIA is set to expire on December 31, 2014.

TRIA does not require commercial property and casualty insurance policies to cover losses from terrorist attacks involving nuclear, biological, chemical, or radioactive (NBCR) materials. If, however, an insurer and a policyholder choose to include losses from terrorist attacks involving NBCR materials in such a policy, TRIA would cover a portion of the losses resulting from such attacks.

For the Secretary of the Treasury to certify a terrorist attack, insured damages resulting from the attack must exceed $5 million. Financial assistance becomes available to insurers suffering losses from a certified attack once the insurers suffering losses have aggregate insured losses from an attack that exceed $100 million. Once that threshold is met, insurance companies that suffer losses are responsible for paying claims up to a deductible amount that equals 20 percent of the premiums they collected for certain lines of insurance in the calendar year preceding a certified attack. The total amount of deductibles paid by insurers would depend on the amount of losses from an attack and the particular insurers involved.

After meeting their individual deductibles for damage claims, insurers that suffered losses and the federal government would each pay a portion of the losses above the deductible (in 2014, the federal government would pay 85 percent of insured losses and individual insurers would pay 15 percent) up to total losses of as much as $100 billion. The law does not specify how any claims above the $100 billion cap would be paid.
The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to recover payments made by the federal government through taxes in the form of surcharges paid by all purchasers of commercial property and casualty insurance. The Secretary is required to recoup any federal payments made to cover losses, but only if those recoveries plus other amounts paid by directly affected insurers do not exceed $27.5 billion—known as the retention amount. If insured losses from a terrorist attack are large enough that insurers pay more than the industry retention amount, the Secretary would not be required to recoup any federal payments. The program provides the Secretary with authority, however, to recover federal payments in that instance after considering the ultimate cost to taxpayers, economic conditions, and the affordability of commercial insurance.

Modifications to TRIA under H.R. 4871

H.R. 4871 would extend TRIA for five years, through December 31, 2019. The bill also would make changes in program parameters that would increase the share of insured losses paid, in certain instances, by private insurers in the event of an attack.

The bill would make changes to the program trigger, that is, the level of aggregate insured losses from a certified attack that must be incurred before insurers would become eligible for federal assistance. For losses resulting from an attack using nuclear, biological, chemical or radiological (NBCR) materials, the current-law level, $100 million, would be retained for the term of the program. For losses incurred from an attack using conventional (or non-NBCR) materials, however, the trigger would increase incrementally from $100 million in calendar year 2015 to $500 million in calendar year 2019, the last year the program would be in effect under H.R. 4871.

As under current law, an insurer suffering losses as a result of a certified attack would pay claims up to a specified deductible.
The bill would retain the same deductible limits as in current law: 20 percent of certain premiums collected in the year preceding an attack.

H.R. 4871 also would continue the payment-sharing process that exists under current law. Affected insurers and the federal government would each pay a portion of the losses over the deductibles up to the $100 billion limit for the program. However, the bill would establish different sharing rates for losses depending on the materials used in the attack. Currently, the federal government would cover 85 percent of covered losses above the deductible. Under the bill, in the case of an NBCR attack, the federal government’s share would remain at 85 percent of covered losses through the expiration of the program. In the case of an attack using conventional materials, however, that rate would decrease incrementally from 85 percent of covered losses in calendar year 2015 to 80 percent of covered losses in calendar year 2019.

Finally, H.R. 4871 would change the industry retention amount—the limit used to calculate the amount of federal spending that would be recovered from policyholders—from a flat amount, $27 billion in 2015, to an amount equal to the sum of the deductibles for all insurers participating in the program during the year of the loss. (CBO estimates that amount would be about $44 billion in 2016.)

Direct spending for TRIA

By extending financial assistance to certain commercial insurers for losses from future acts of terrorism against insured private property, enacting H.R. 4871 would expose the federal government to potentially large liabilities for five more years (2015 through 2019). For any particular year, the amount of insured damage caused by terrorists could range from zero to many billions of dollars. CBO’s estimate of the cost of this program reflects how much, on average, the government could be expected to pay to insurers and recover from the industry over the 2015–2024 period.

The following sections describe our method for estimating the expected value of financial assistance under the bill and explain how we convert that cost to estimates of annual federal expenditures.

Estimating the Expected Cost of Federal Assistance. For this estimate, CBO discussed the process of estimating insured losses with industry actuaries and reviewed models used by firms to set premiums for the terrorism component of property and casualty insurance that they offer. State insurance regulators generally require such premiums to be grounded in a widely accepted model of expected losses from covered events. After the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001, the insurance industry began efforts to set premiums for insurance coverage for terrorist events using such models.

Although estimating losses associated with terrorist events is difficult because of the lack of meaningful historical data, the insurance industry has experience setting premiums for other catastrophic events namely, natural disasters. Setting premiums for hurricanes and earthquakes, for example, involves determining areas that could sustain damage, the value of the losses that could result from various types of events with different levels of severity, and the frequency of such events.
Similarly, estimating premiums for losses resulting from terrorist attacks involves judgments regarding potential targets and the frequency of potential attacks. Because there is a very limited history of terrorist attacks in the United States, many of the parameters needed by the insurance industry to set premiums are based on expert opinion regarding terrorist activities and capabilities as well as information about attempted attacks that were not successful.

Estimating Potential Insured Losses. Based on discussions with insurers and information provided by the insurance industry, CBO estimates that the expected or average annual loss subject to TRIA coverage under the bill would be about $2.1 billion (in 2014 dollars); of that amount, $1.5 billion would account for losses caused by attacks using conventional materials and $650 million would be for losses caused by attacks using NBCR materials. This estimate incorporates industry expectations of the probabilities of terrorist attacks, encompassing the possibility of attacks that result in enormous loss of life and property damage, as well as a significant likelihood that no such attacks would occur in any given year. This estimate also reflects our expectation that some portion of losses from terrorism would not be covered by TRIA because some policyholders choose not to purchase insurance coverage for terrorism risks.

CBO’s estimate incorporates an expectation that, in most years, losses from terrorist attacks covered by TRIA would cost significantly less than $2.1 billion. We expect that there is a significant chance that no terrorist attacks covered by TRIA would occur in a given year. Since enactment of TRIA, no covered events have occurred, though several attempts were prevented by law enforcement and other security measures. Although the risk of a terrorist attack with many lives lost and substantial property damage still remains, based on industry models, CBO assumes for this estimate that attacks causing losses similar in scale to those sustained on September 11, 2001, in New York City are likely to occur very rarely, if at all.3

Under current law, insurers are not required to offer coverage for attacks using NBCR materials, although if an insurer and a policyholder voluntarily agree to include this coverage in a property and casualty policy, TRIA would cover some of those losses. While the bill would not require property and casualty policies to include coverage for losses resulting from attacks using NBCR materials, information provided by the industry indicates that a small amount of coverage is currently in place for such losses. Thus, under the bill, the government’s exposure to losses resulting from terrorist attacks involving NBCR materials would likewise be small compared with losses resulting from attacks using conventional materials. The only exception is in the workers’ compensation insurance line, where no exclusions for specific causes are allowed.

Determining the Federal Share of Insured Losses. Federal payments under TRIA would be lower than the total expected losses from terrorist attacks because TRIA places limits on eligibility for federal assistance and requires that insurers that suffer losses as 3 Based on information from the Insurance Information Institute, we estimate that industry losses on September 11, 2001, totaled about $44 billion (in 2014 dollars), including about $35 billion in losses that would have qualified for coverage under TRIA had the law been in effect on that date.

the result of a certified attack pay a share of covered losses. CBO took account of those requirements to estimate federal spending for any given amount of insured losses from future terrorist attacks.

- Upper and lower limits for federal assistance. Because federal payments under TRIA would be capped at $100 billion per event, we excluded costs for potential losses above that level.
- Similarly, H.R. 4871 would set a minimum level of aggregate insured losses that must be incurred before insurers become eligible for financial assistance. Those minimum levels would depend on the materials used in a certified attack. If conventional materials were used, the minimum level of losses would increase each year of the authorization from $100 million in 2015 to $500 million in 2019. For attacks using NBCR materials, that minimum level would remain at $100 million each year. For this estimate, we excluded losses below the appropriate minimum level as well.
- Insurers' deductibles. Before the federal government would make any payments under TRIA, an insurer incurring losses would first pay claims up to a deductible amount. H.R. 4871 would maintain the current-law deductible of 20 percent of premiums on certain property and casualty lines collected by affected insurers in the calendar year preceding an attack.

  The total amount of the deductibles could range from a few million dollars to several billion dollars, depending on how many insurers provide coverage for losses resulting from a particular terrorist attack. In addition, the value of each individual insurer's deductible would vary greatly across the industry. For this estimate, CBO considered a range of possibilities regarding the share of federal assistance, using industry data to estimate insurers' deductibles under the bill. The range encompasses the possibility that an attack would affect only a few insurers with relatively small deductibles or several insurers with relatively large deductibles. CBO expects that insured losses below a few hundred million dollars for attacks using either conventional or NBCR materials would most likely be covered by insurers' deductibles, and therefore, would not result in a significant increase in federal spending.

- Shared payments if losses exceed insurers' deductibles. Once affected insurers have paid claims up to their deductibles, the federal government would share a portion of the losses above the deductibles. Under H.R. 4871, the federal government's share of claims above the deductible for losses from conventional attacks would fall from the current level of 85 percent of total losses to 80 percent, up to the $100 billion limit covered by the program, by 2019. For losses incurred in attacks using NBCR materials, the federal government's share of amounts above the deductible would remain at 85 percent, up to the $100 billion limit, for the full term of the program.

After taking into account minimum and maximum limits, deductibles, and the insurers' share of payments above the deductibles, CBO estimates that enacting title I would increase direct spending in total by $2.8 billion (but a portion of that estimated spending would occur after 2024, as noted below). That amount translates into an average of roughly $560 million for each of the five years for which the program would be extended. Actual spending would be spread out over many years, and those costs would be recovered through surcharges imposed on policyholders (which are discussed in the section on revenues below).

Taken another way, if the Secretary of the Treasury were authorized to collect premiums for the program, CBO estimates that the Secretary would need to charge, on average, about $560 million per year (for five years) to offset the government’s projected losses under the bill. The bill, however, would not authorize any charges prior to a certified attack. The bill also does not contain an explicit requirement for the Secretary to recoup interest that would accrue on amounts outstanding.

Timing of Federal Spending. To estimate federal spending for this program on a cash basis, CBO used information from insurance experts on historical rates of payment for property and casualty claims following catastrophic events. Based on such information, CBO estimates that outlays under title I would total about $2.5 billion over the 2015–2024 period and about $250 million after 2024. In general, following a catastrophic loss, it takes many years to complete insurance payments because of disputes over the value of covered losses by property and business owners. Under this bill, we expect that financial assistance to insurers would be paid over several years, with most of the spending occurring within the first five years following a certified event.

Revenues for TRIA

Enacting title I would affect federal revenues by authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to impose taxes in the form of surcharges on all holders of property and casualty insurance policies to recover the amount of federal payments made under the program, with certain limitations. CBO estimates that this provision would increase revenues by $2.0 billion over the 2015–2024 period and an additional $1 billion after 2024.

Surcharges. If a terrorist attack were to trigger government payment of financial assistance, the bill would require the Secretary of the Treasury to recoup some or all of that cost through taxes paid by purchasers of commercial property and casualty insurance. The calculation of the amount to be recouped would continue as under current law for the first year of the reauthorization (2015). Starting in calendar year 2016, the bill would direct the Secretary to recoup all federal assistance paid to affected insurers up the industry retention amount, which would be set at the deductible amount for all insurers participating in the program (about $44 billion in 2016, CBO estimates.)

If insured losses from a terrorist attack are large enough that federal assistance exceeds the industry retention amount, the Secretary would not be required to recoup that excess federal assistance—although the Secretary could choose to do so. In that case, the amount the Secretary would collect would be based on economic conditions, the affordability of commercial insurance, and the cost to taxpayers of no additional recoupment. CBO expects that the Secretary would not seek to recover financial assistance provided above the industry retention amount and would not collect interest on outstanding amounts.

The recoupment of financial assistance would be accomplished by assessing a surcharge on premiums for property and casualty insurance policies and would apply to policies in force following a terrorist attack that necessitated federal assistance. The amount to be recovered would be 150 percent of the difference between the industry retention amount and the Secretary’s estimate of the total amount paid by insurers for deductibles and their share of payments over the deductibles. CBO estimates that surcharges resulting from a five-year extension of TRIA would total, on an expected-value basis, $2.8 billion over the 2015–2024 period.

Timing and Tax Offset. The bill would direct the Secretary to begin collection of the surcharge in cases where a surcharge would be imposed—no later than 18 months after an attack. CBO assumes that such surcharges would be fully collected over 10 years, with collections starting in the first year after a certified attack.

The gross revenue collections would be partially offset by a loss of revenues from income and payroll taxes. Consistent with standard procedures for estimating the revenue impact of indirect business taxes, CBO reduced the gross revenue impact of the insurance surcharges to reflect offsetting effects on income and payroll tax receipts. On balance, CBO estimates that enacting title I would increase revenues by a total of $2.0 billion over the 2015–2024 period, net of income and payroll tax offsets.

Spending subject to appropriation for TRIA

Title I also would direct several agencies to prepare reports on various issues related to the TRIA program. Spending to complete those reports would be subject to the availability of appropriated funds. Specifically:

- The Congressional Budget Office and the Office of Management and Budget each would be required to determine the feasibility of applying accrual accounting concepts to budgeting for the costs of TRIA and other insurance programs administered by the federal government; and
- The Government Accountability Office would be required to assess the viability of collecting upfront premiums from insurers that participate in the TRIA program and creating a reserve fund under the program where participating insurers would be able to dedicate capital for terrorism losses.

CBO estimates that implementing the new reporting requirements would cost about $2 million over the 2015–2019 period to complete the required studies and reports.

Basis of estimate for Title II (NARAB): CBO believes that cash flows related to the National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers that would be created under the bill should be recorded in the budget as revenues and direct spending because the association’s authority would exist only through a preemption of states’ power to regulate the licensing of insurance producers. This preemption would stem from an exercise of the sovereign power of the federal government.

Direct spending for NARAB

Under H.R. 4871, the NARAB would be responsible for establishing eligibility requirements for membership in the association, evaluating applicants’ eligibility for membership, and managing license requirements for members. Title II would direct the NARAB to establish separate classes of membership for businesses and in-individuals and require members to meet certain continuing education requirements.

H.R. 4871 would authorize the NARAB to create a database to centralize information about regulatory actions taken by states regarding insurance producers. The bill would allow two years from the date of enactment for the association to set up operations. During that time, the NARAB would be authorized to borrow funds from the public to cover start-up costs, which would be repaid from membership fees.

Based on information about the cost to operate similar professional organizations, CBO estimates that enacting title II would increase direct spending by $491 million over the 2015–2024 period to cover start-up, staffing, and operating costs of the organization.

Revenues for NARAB

H.R. 4871 would authorize the NARAB to charge fees to members to cover the cost of operating the organization. CBO assumes that the NARAB would use its authority to borrow funds to organize and begin its operations before membership fees could be collected, but revenues would keep pace with outlays beginning in 2015. CBO estimates that collecting those fees would increase revenues by $497 million over the 2015–2024 period.

Spending subject to appropriation for NARAB

Title II would require the Department of Justice to establish regulations to implement a requirement that members of NARAB undergo a background check conducted by the Attorney General. The NARAB would be authorized to collect fees, which would be remitted to the Department of Justice, for those background checks. We expect that those fees would be classified as offsetting collections and would be credited to the salaries and expenses appropriation of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). This is the same budgetary treatment accorded fees currently collected by the FBI for similar purposes.

We estimate that collecting and spending the fees for background checks authorized under title II would have no significant net effect on discretionary spending in any year.

Pay-As-You-Go considerations: The Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010 establishes budget-reporting and enforcement procedures for legislation affecting direct spending or revenues. The net changes in outlays and revenues that are subject to those pay-as-you-go procedures are shown in the following table.
CBO Estimate of Pay-As-You-Go Effects for H.R. 4871, as Ordered Reported by the House Committee on Financial Services on June 20, 2014

Intergovernmental and private-sector impact: H.R. 4871 would impose intergovernmental and private-sector mandates, as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act, by extending and expanding requirements contained in the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act. Those mandates would:

- Require property and casualty insurers to offer terrorism insurance;
- Require property and casualty insurers to collect and report information about terrorism insurance policies; and
- Require, under certain circumstances, property and casualty insurers to collect surcharges from policyholders in amounts large enough to pay assessments to the federal government.

The bill also would impose intergovernmental mandates by preempting state laws and by requiring state insurance regulators to report on the results of insurance investigations.

State, local, or tribal governments could be required to pay a surcharge as purchasers of property and casualty insurance, but CBO estimates that the aggregate costs to public entities of complying with all of the mandates contained in the bill would fall below the annual threshold established in UMRA ($76 million in 2014 for intergovernmental mandates, adjusted annually for inflation). CBO estimates that the aggregate cost to private insurers and policyholders to comply with the mandates would exceed the annual threshold established in UMRA ($152 million in 2014 for private-sector mandates, adjusted annually for inflation) beginning in 2018.

Mandates that apply to public and private entities

Requirement to Offer Insurance. Current law (through 2014) requires that insurance companies offer terrorism insurance as a part of their property and casualty policies. Insurers may set their own premium rates, and policyholders can choose whether to purchase such insurance. The bill would extend the requirement to offer terrorism insurance through 2019. According to industry representatives, the cost to public and private insurers of continuing to offer such insurance would be minimal.

Requirement to Collect and Report Information. The bill would require property and casualty insurers to collect and report information to the federal government regarding their insurance coverage for terrorism losses (including information about lines of insurance with exposure to such losses; premiums earned on such coverage; geographical location of exposures; and pricing of such coverage). Based on information from insurers, CBO estimates that the cost to public and private entities of complying with the mandate would amount to tens of millions of dollars annually.

Repayment of Assistance. Insurers that offer terrorism insurance would receive financial assistance to cover losses under some conditions in the event of a certified terrorist attack. The bill would extend and expand the requirement that the federal government recoup the costs of such financial assistance through assessments on the insurers and surcharges on purchasers of property and casualty insurance. On average, policyholders would be required to pay a higher amount in surcharges under the bill in the event of a certified terrorist attack as compared to the amount they would have to pay under current requirements. The requirement to repay the federal government would be both an intergovernmental and a private-sector mandate under UMRA since state and local governments and private entities are both providers and purchasers of insurance.

The cost to insurers to comply with the mandate to administer the surcharges on policyholders and remit the amounts collected to the federal government would be small.

CBO estimates that insurer surcharges would total about $715 million over the 2015–2019 period. That amount is equal to federal benefits paid over those years plus 50 percent of those benefits (see the section on Revenues for TRIA, above, for further discussion). Based on information about the purchase of various types of insurance by public entities, CBO judges that state, local, and tribal governments comprise a small portion of the total market for property and casualty insurance. To the extent that state, local, or tribal governments would be required to pay a surcharge as policyholders, CBO estimates that the aggregate cost to public entities of complying with the mandate would total about $60 million over the 2015–2019 period. CBO estimates that the aggregate amount of surcharges paid by private entities would total about $655 million over the 2015–2019 period.

Mandates that apply to public entities only

H.R. 4871 would prohibit states from requiring producers that are members of the National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers to register with secretaries of state, meet state licensing requirements, complete education requirements, or be bonded. The bill also would require state insurance regulators to notify the NARAB of the results of complaint investigations.

Under current law, about 10 states require nonresident producers to register with their respective secretaries of state, and to pay fees. The bill would prohibit states from imposing this requirement and from collecting such fees. Based on the number of producers that are currently registered in states that impose that requirement, CBO estimates that the states would lose less than $1 million in fee revenue in 2017 and each year thereafter. We also estimates that the cost to states for the licensing, education, bonding, and notification requirements would be minimal. The bill also would preempt some state laws that regulate insurance. Based on information from state insurance regulators, CBO estimates that the cost to states of extending those preemptions would be minimal.

Previous CBO estimates: On June 24, 2014, CBO transmitted a cost estimate for S. 2244, the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2014, as ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs on June 23, 2014. Title I of H.R. 4817 and S. 2244 would extend authorization for TRIA for a different length of time and change the program's parameters in different ways; the CBO cost estimates reflect the differences between the two bills.

On June 13, 2013, CBO transmitted a cost estimate for S. 534, the National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers Reform Act of 2013, as ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs on June 6, 2013. The provisions of title II of H.R. 4817 and S. 534 are similar, as are the CBO cost estimates.

Estimate approved by: Peter H. Fontaine, Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

Section 1. Short title

This bill may be cited as the “TRIA Reform Act of 2014.”

TITLE I—TRIA REFORM

Section 101. References

Section 102. Extension of program

Extends the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program for five years through December 31, 2019.

Section 103. Certification of acts of terrorism

Beginning on January 1, 2015, requires the Treasury Secretary, when deciding whether to certify an “act of terrorism,” to consult with the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Attorney General of the United States. Requires the Secretary to issue a preliminary certification within 15 days after an event followed by a final determination within 90 days to certify an event as an act of terrorism. This section also removes the $5 million threshold for certifying acts of terror.

Section 104. Separate treatment of conventional terrorism from NBCR Terrorism

- Bifurcation of the definition of “act of terrorism”

Beginning on January 1, 2016, for each event certified as an act of terrorism, the Treasury Secretary shall include a determination whether the event does or does not involve Nuclear, Biological, Chemical, or Radiological (NBCR) terrorism.

- Federal Share of Insured Losses (Co-Pay)

Beginning on January 1, 2016, annually reduces the federal share of payments for non-NBCR acts of terrorism to 80 percent of insured losses by 2019. For acts involving NBCR terrorism, the federal share of payments would remain at 85 percent of insured losses.

- Program Trigger

Beginning January 1, 2016, increases the program trigger for non-NBCR acts of terrorism by $100 million per year up to $500 million by January 1, 2019. For acts involving NBCR terrorism, the program trigger would remain at $100 million. For purposes of determining if industry losses have exceeded the trigger, the Treasury Secretary shall not include acts resulting in $50 million or less in insured losses.

Section 105. Availability of coverage

Requires the Treasury Secretary to promulgate regulations to allow small insurers to voluntarily opt-out of TRIA’s mandatory availability requirement if their state regulator determines continued participation by such insurer would create a financial hardship or that it would be financially infeasible for the insurer to provide coverage for insured losses.

Section 106. Terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums amount

Beginning on January 1, 2016, increases the amount that the Treasury Secretary is required to collect through terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums from 133 to 150 percent of the federal payments made subject to mandatory recoupment.

Section 107. Increase of aggregate retention amount

Beginning on January 1, 2016, increases the insurance marketplace aggregate retention amount to equal the sum of insurer deductibles for the preceding program year for all participating insurers. Clarifies that the amount of federal payments subject to mandatory recoupment shall be equal to the lesser of the total of federal payments made or the insurance marketplace aggregate retention amount.

Section 108. Terrorism loss risk-spreading premium

Beginning on January 1, 2016, requires the Treasury Secretary when establishing terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums, to begin collecting such premiums within 18 months after the occurrence of the certified act for which they are imposed and, in the case of premiums imposed on a discretionary basis, limits the premium to not less than 3 percent of the annual premiums charged for property and casualty insurance coverage.

Section 109. Risk-sharing mechanism

Asserts that Congress finds it is desirable to encourage the growth of nongovernmental, private market reinsurance capacity for terrorism risks, and requires the Treasury Secretary to establish an Advisory Committee to encourage the creation and development of private market risk-sharing mechanisms.

Section 110. Reporting of terrorism insurance data

Beginning on January 1, 2016, the Treasury Secretary shall collect the following information: (1) lines of insurance with exposure to terrorism; (2) premiums earned on terrorism risk coverage; (3) the geographical location of risk exposure; (4) the pricing of terrorism risk insurance; (5) the take-up rate of terrorism risk insurance; (6) the amount of private reinsurance for acts of terrorism purchased; and (7) such other data as the Secretary deems appropriate. Requires the Secretary to collect the data in a manner that does not reveal proprietary information of the participating insurers, and to provide the House and Senate Committees of jurisdiction an analysis of such data on an annual basis.

Section 111. Delivery of notice to policyholders

Requires insurers to issue disclosure notices to policyholders only at the time of offer and renewal of the policy rather than at the time of offer, purchase, and renewal, as required under current law.

Section 112. Definition of control

Clarifies definition of “control” for certain reciprocal insurers where the establishment of an attorney-in-fact relationship could currently be misinterpreted by Treasury and result in misallocated deductible, liability cap, recoupment, and liability.

Section 113. Annual study of small insurer market competitiveness

Requires the Treasury Secretary to conduct an annual study of small insurers participating in the TRIA program to identify any competitive challenges they may face in the terrorism risk insurance marketplace.

Section 114. CBO and OMB studies regarding budgeting for costs of federal insurance programs

Requires the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) and the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) to each conduct a study on the application of accrual accounting concepts to budgeting for the costs of TRIA and other federal insurance programs, and report their findings to the House and Senate Committees of jurisdiction.

Section 115. GAO study on upfront premiums and capital reserve fund

Requires the Government Accountability Office (GAO) to study the viability of the Federal government assessing and collecting upfront premiums from insurers for terrorism reinsurance coverage or requiring insurers to create capital reserve funds for terrorism-related risks. This study would also provide a comparative analysis of the types of systems implemented in other countries that collect or assess premiums or create capital reserve funds.

TITLE II—NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REGISTERED AGENTS AND BROKERS REFORM

Section 201. Short title

Provides that this title may be referred to as the “National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers Reform Act of 2014.

Section 202. Reestablishment of the National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers

Amends the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act to repeal the contingent conditions preventing the establishment of the National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers (NARAB) and establishes the NARAB.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW MADE BY THE BILL, AS REPORTED

In compliance with clause 3(e) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, changes in existing law made by the bill, as reported, are shown as follows (existing law proposed to be omitted is enclosed in black brackets, new matter is printed in italic, existing law in which no change is proposed is shown in roman):

(e) INSURED LOSS SHARED COMPENSATION.—

(1) FEDERAL SHARE.—

   (A) IN GENERAL.— Subject to subparagraphs (B) and (C), the Federal share of compensation under the Program to be paid by the Secretary for insured losses of an insurer during the Transition Period shall be equal to 90 percent, and during Program Year 5 and each Program Year thereafter through the Program Year ending on December 31, 2015, shall be equal to 85 percent, of that portion of the amount of such insured losses that exceeds the applicable insurer deductible required to be paid during such Transition Period or such Program Year; and

   (i) during the Transition period, and each Program Year through Program Year 4 shall be equal to 90 percent, and during Program Year 5 and each Program Year thereafter through the Program Year ending on December 31, 2015, shall be equal to 85 percent, of that portion of the amount of such insured losses that exceeds the applicable insurer deductible required to be paid during such Transition Period or such Program Year;

   (ii) shall be equal to—

   (I) during the Program Year beginning on January 1, 2016, 84 percent of that portion of the amount of such insured losses that exceeds the applicable insurer deductible required to be paid during such Program Year;

   (aa) during the Program Year beginning on January 1, 2016, 84 percent of that portion of the amount of such insured losses that exceeds

   (bb) during the Program Year beginning on January 1, 2017, 83 percent of that portion of the amount of such insured losses that exceeds the applicable insurer deductible required to be paid during such Program Year;

(cc) during the Program Year beginning on January 1, 2018, 82 percent of that portion of the amount of such insured losses that exceeds the applicable insurer deductible required to be paid during such Program Year; and

(dd) $500,000,000, with respect to such insured losses occurring in the Program Year beginning on January 1, 2019; and

(II) in the case of an act of NBCR terrorism, $100,000,000, with respect to such insured losses occurring in the Program Year beginning on January 1, 2016, or any Program Year thereafter.

In determining the aggregate industry insured losses resulting from certified acts of terrorism for purposes of this subparagraph, the Secretary shall not consider any act of terrorism resulting, in the aggregate, in less than $50,000,000 in insured losses.
(6) INSURANCE MARKETPLACE AGGREGATE RETENTION AMOUNT.—For purposes of paragraph (7), the insurance marketplace aggregate retention amount shall be—

(A) MANDATORY RECOUPMENT AMOUNT.—For purposes of this paragraph, the mandatory recoupment amount for each of the periods referred to in subparagraphs (A) through (E) of paragraph (6) shall be the difference between—

(i) the insurance marketplace aggregate retention amount under paragraph (6) for such period; and

(ii) the aggregate amount, for all insurers, of insured losses during such period that are not compensated by the Federal Government because such losses—

(I) are within the insurer deductible for the insurer subject to the losses; or

(II) are within the portion of losses of the insurer that exceed the insurer deductible, but are not compensated pursuant to paragraph (1).

(B) NO MANDATORY RECOUPMENT IF UNCOMPENSATED LOSSES EXCEED INSURANCE MARKETPLACE RETENTION.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), if the aggregate amount of uncompensated insured losses referred to in clause (ii) of such subparagraph for any period referred to in any of subparagraphs (A) through (E) of paragraph (6) is greater than the insurance marketplace aggregate retention amount under paragraph (6) for such period, the mandatory recoupment amount shall be $0.

(A) MANDATORY RECOUPMENT AMOUNT.—For purposes of this paragraph, the mandatory recoupment amount for each of the periods referred to in subparagraphs (A) through (F) of paragraph (6) shall be equal to the lesser of—
(i) the aggregate amount, for all insurers, of insured losses during such period that are compensated by the Federal Government pursuant to paragraph (1); or

(ii) the insurance marketplace aggregate retention amount under paragraph (6) for such period.

[(C)] (B) MANDATORY ESTABLISHMENT OF SURCHARGES TO RECOUP MANDATORY RECOUPMENT AMOUNT.—The Secretary shall collect, for repayment of the Federal financial assistance provided in connection with all acts of terrorism (or acts of war, in the case of workers compensation) occurring during any of the periods referred to in any of subparagraphs (A) through (F) of paragraph (6), terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums in an amount equal to 133 percent of any mandatory recoupment amount for such period.

[(D)] (C) DISCRETIONARY RECOUPMENT OF REMAINDER OF FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.—To the extent that the amount of Federal financial assistance provided exceeds any mandatory recoupment amount, the Secretary may recoup, through terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums, such additional amounts that the Secretary believes can be recouped, based on—

(i) the ultimate costs to taxpayers of no additional recoupment;

[(E)] (D) TIMING OF MANDATORY RECOUPMENT.—

(i) In general.—If the Secretary is required to collect terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums under subparagraph (C)—

(III) for any act of terrorism that occurs on or after January 1, 2012 before December 31, 2014, the Secretary shall collect all required premiums by September 30, 2017.

[(F)] (E) NOTICE OF ESTIMATED LOSSES.—Not later than 90 days after the date of an act of terrorism, the Secretary shall publish an estimate of aggregate insured losses, which shall be used as the basis for determining whether mandatory recoupment will be required under this paragraph. Such estimate shall be updated as appropriate, and at least annually.

[(G) POLICY SURCHARGE FOR TERRORISM LOSS RISK-SPREADING PREMIUMS.—

[(A) POLICYHOLDER PREMIUM.—Any amount established by the Secretary as a terrorism loss risk-spreading premium shall—

(i) be imposed as a policyholder premium surcharge on property and casualty insurance policies in force after the date of such establishment;

(ii) begin with such period of coverage during the year as the Secretary determines appropriate; and
[(iii) be based on a percentage of the premium amount charged for property and casualty insurance coverage under the policy.

(B) COLLECTION.—The Secretary shall provide for insurers to collect terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums and remit such amounts collected to the Secretary.

(C) PERCENTAGE LIMITATION.—A terrorism loss risk-spreading premium collected on a discretionary basis pursuant to paragraph (7)(D) may not exceed, on an annual basis, the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for property and casualty insurance coverage under the policy.

(D) ADJUSTMENT FOR URBAN AND SMALLER COMMERCIAL AND RURAL AREAS AND DIFFERENT LINES OF INSURANCE.—

(i) ADJUSTMENTS.—In determining the method and manner of imposing terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums, including the amount of such premiums, the Secretary shall take into consideration—

(I) the economic impact on commercial centers of urban areas, including the effect on commercial rents and commercial insurance premiums, particularly rents and premiums charged to small businesses, and the availability of lease space and commercial insurance within urban areas;

(II) the risk factors related to rural areas and smaller commercial centers, including the potential exposure to loss and the likely magnitude of such loss, as well as any resulting cross-subsidization that might result; and

(III) the various exposures to terrorism risk for different lines of insurance.

(ii) RECOUPMENT OF ADJUSTMENTS.—Any mandatory recoupment amounts not collected by the Secretary because of adjustments under this subparagraph shall be recouped through additional terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums, in accordance with the timing requirements of paragraph (7)(E).

(E) TIMING OF PREMIUMS.—The Secretary may adjust the timing of terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums to provide for equivalent application of the provisions of this title to policies that are not based on a calendar year, or to apply such provisions on a daily, monthly, or quarterly basis, as appropriate.]

(8) TERRORISM LOSS RISK-SPREADING PREMIUMS.—

(A) ESTABLISHMENT.—After an act of terrorism, the Secretary shall, to the extent provided in paragraph (7)(B), and may, to the extent provided in paragraph (7)(C), establish terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums, which shall be imposed as a policyholder premium surcharge on property and casualty insurance policies for all participating insurers in force after the date of such establishment.

(B) COLLECTION.—The Secretary shall provide for insurers to collect terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums and remit such amounts collected to the Secretary.
(C) DETERMINATION OF PREMIUMS.—In determining the method and manner of imposing terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums, including the amount of such premiums, the Secretary shall—

(i) impose such terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums beginning with such period of coverage during the year as the Secretary determines appropriate, but shall commence imposition of such premiums not later than 18 months after the occurrence of the act of terrorism for which such premiums are imposed;

(ii) base any terrorism loss risk-spreading premium on a percentage of the premium amount charged for property and casualty insurance coverage under the policy; and

(iii) take into consideration—

(I) the economic impact on commercial centers of urban areas, including the effect on commercial rents and commercial insurance premiums, particularly rents and premiums charged to small businesses, and the availability of lease space and commercial insurance within urban areas;

(II) the risk factors related to rural areas and smaller commercial centers, including the potential exposure to loss and the likely magnitude of such loss, as well as any resulting cross-subsidization that might result; and

(III) the various exposures to terrorism risk for different lines of insurance.

(D) PERCENTAGE LIMITATION.—A terrorism loss risk-spreading premium collected on a discretionary basis pursuant to paragraph (7)(C) shall not be less than, on an annual basis, the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for property and casualty insurance coverage under the policy.

(E) TIMING OF PREMIUMS.—The Secretary may adjust the timing of terrorism loss risk-spreading premiums to provide for equivalent application of the provisions of this title to policies that are not based on a calendar year, or to apply such provisions on a daily, monthly, or quarterly basis, as appropriate.

(9) RISK-SHARING MECHANISMS.—

(A) FINDING; RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—The Congress finds that it is desirable to encourage the growth of non-governmental, private market reinsurance capacity for protection against losses arising from acts of terrorism. Therefore, nothing in this title shall prohibit insurers from developing risk-sharing mechanisms (including mutual reinsurance facilities and agreements, use of the capital markets, and insurance-linked securities) to voluntarily reinsure terrorism losses between and among themselves that are not subject to reimbursement under this section.

(i) encourage the creation and development of such risk-sharing mechanisms;

(3) PROTECTION OF DATA.—To the extent possible, the Secretary shall contract with an insurance statistical aggregator to collect the information described in paragraph (1), which shall keep any nonpublic information confidential and provide it to the Secretary in an aggregate form or in such other form or manner that does not permit identification of the insurer submitting such information.

(4) ADVANCE COORDINATION.—Before collecting any data or information under paragraph (1) from an insurer, or affiliate of an insurer, the Secretary shall coordinate with the appropriate State insurance regulatory authorities or their representatives and any relevant government agency or publicly available sources to determine if the information to be collected is available from, and may be obtained in a timely manner by, individually or collectively, such entities. If the Secretary determines that such data or information is available, and may be obtained in a timely matter, from such entities, the Secretary shall obtain the data or information from such entities. If the Secretary determines that such data or information is not so available, the Secretary may collect such data or information from an insurer and affiliates.

(5) CONFIDENTIALITY.—
(A) RETENTION OF PRIVILEGE.—The submission of any non-publicly available data and information to the Secretary and the sharing of any non-publicly available data with or by the Secretary among other Federal agencies, the State insurance regulatory authorities and their collective agents, or any other entities under this subsection shall not constitute a waiver of, or otherwise affect, any privilege arising under Federal or State law (including the rules of any Federal or State court) to which the data or information is otherwise subject.

(B) CONTINUED APPLICATION OF PRIOR CONFIDENTIALITY AGREEMENTS.—Any requirement under Federal or State law to the extent otherwise applicable, or any requirement pursuant to a written agreement in effect between the original source of any non-publicly available data or information and the source of such data or information to the Secretary, regarding the privacy or confidentiality of any data or information in the possession of the source to the Secretary, shall continue to apply to such data or information after the data or information has been provided pursuant to this subsection.

[(1) have enacted uniform laws and regulations governing the licensure of individuals and entities authorized to sell and solicit the purchase of insurance within the State; or]

[(2) have enacted reciprocity laws and regulations governing the licensure of nonresident individuals and entities authorized to sell and solicit insurance within those States.]
[b] UNIFORMITY REQUIRED.—States shall be deemed to have established the uniformity necessary to satisfy subsection (a)(1) if the States—

(1) establish uniform criteria regarding the integrity, personal qualifications, education, training, and experience of licensed insurance producers, including the qualification and training of sales personnel in ascertaining the appropriateness of a particular insurance product for a prospective customer;

(2) establish uniform continuing education requirements for licensed insurance producers;

(3) establish uniform ethics course requirements for licensed insurance producers in conjunction with the continuing education requirements under paragraph (2);

(4) establish uniform criteria to ensure that an insurance product, including any annuity contract, sold to a consumer is suitable and appropriate for the consumer based on financial information disclosed by the consumer; and

(5) do not impose any requirement upon any insurance producer to be licensed or otherwise qualified to do business as a nonresident that has the effect of limiting or conditioning that producer’s activities because of its residence or place of operations, except that countersignature requirements imposed on nonresident producers shall not be deemed to have the effect of limiting or conditioning a producer’s activities because of its residence or place of operations under this section.

[c] RECIPROCITY REQUIRED.—States shall be deemed to have established the reciprocity required to satisfy subsection (a)(2) if the following conditions are met:

(1) ADMINISTRATIVE LICENSING PROCEDURES.—At least a majority of the States permit a producer that has a resident license for selling or soliciting the purchase of insurance in its home State to receive a license to sell or solicit the purchase of insurance in such majority of States as a nonresident to the same extent that such producer is permitted to sell or solicit the purchase of insurance in its State, if the producer’s home State also awards such licenses on such a reciprocal basis, without satisfying any additional requirements other than submitting—

(A) a request for licensure;

(B) the application for licensure that the producer submitted to its home State;

(C) proof that the producer is licensed and in good standing in its home State; and

(D) the payment of any requisite fee to the appropriate authority.

(2) CONTINUING EDUCATION REQUIREMENTS.—A majority of the States accept an insurance producer’s satisfaction of its home State’s continuing education requirements for licensed insurance producers to satisfy the States’ own continuing education requirements if the producer’s home State also recognizes the satisfaction of continuing education requirements on such a reciprocal basis.

(3) NO LIMITING NONRESIDENT REQUIREMENTS.—A majority of the States do not impose any requirement upon any insurance producer to be licensed or otherwise qualified to do business as a nonresident that has the effect of limiting or conditioning that producer's activities because of its residence or place of operations, except that countersignature requirements imposed on nonresident producers shall not be deemed to have the effect of limiting or conditioning a producer's activities because of its residence or place of operations under this section.

(4) Reciprocal Reciprocity.—Each of the States that satisfies paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) grants reciprocity to residents of all of the other States that satisfy such paragraphs.

(d) Determination.—

(1) NAIC Determination.—At the end of the 3-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (hereafter in this subtitle referred to as the “NAIC”) shall determine, in consultation with the insurance commissioners or chief insurance regulatory officials of the States, whether the uniformity or reciprocity required by subsections (b) and (c) has been achieved.

(2) Judicial Review.—The appropriate United States district court shall have exclusive jurisdiction over any challenge to the NAIC’s determination under this section and such court shall apply the standards set forth in section 706 of title 5, United States Code, when reviewing any such challenge.

(e) Continued Application.—If, at any time, the uniformity or reciprocity required by subsections (b) and (c) no longer exists, the provisions of this subtitle shall take effect 2 years after the date on which such uniformity or reciprocity ceases to exist, unless the uniformity or reciprocity required by those provisions is satisfied before the expiration of that 2-year period.

(f) Savings Provision.—No provision of this section shall be construed as requiring that any law, regulation, provision, or action of any State which purports to regulate insurance producers, including any such law, regulation, provision, or action which purports to regulate unfair trade practices or establish consumer protections, including countersignature laws, be altered or amended in order to satisfy the uniformity or reciprocity required by subsections (b) and (c), unless any such law, regulation, provision, or action is inconsistent with a specific requirement of any such subsection and then only to the extent of such inconsistency.

(g) Uniform Licensing.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to require any State to adopt new or additional licensing requirements to achieve the uniformity necessary to satisfy subsection (a)(1).

SEC. 322. NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REGISTERED AGENTS AND BROKERS.

(a) Establishment.—There is established the National Association of Registered Agents and Brokers (hereafter in this subtitle referred to as the “Association”).

(1) be a nonprofit corporation;
(2) have succession until dissolved by an Act of Congress;
(3) not be an agent or instrumentality of the United States Government; and
(4) except as otherwise provided in this Act, be subject to, and have all the powers conferred upon a nonprofit corporation... by the District of Columbia Nonprofit Corporation Act (D.C. Code, sec. 29y-1001 et seq.).

[SEC. 323. PURPOSE.

The purpose of the Association shall be to provide a mechanism through which uniform licensing, appointment, continuing education, and other insurance producer sales qualification requirements and conditions can be adopted and applied on a multistate basis, while preserving the right of States to license, supervise, and discipline insurance producers and to prescribe and enforce laws and regulations with regard to insurance-related consumer protection and unfair trade practices.

[SEC. 324. RELATIONSHIP TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

(2) INELIGIBILITY FOR SUSPENSION OR REVOCATION OF LICENSE.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), a State-licensed insurance producer shall not be eligible to become a member if a State insurance regulator has suspended or revoked such producer’s license in that State during the 3-year period preceding the date on which such producer applies for membership.

(3) RESUMPTION OF ELIGIBILITY.—Paragraph (2) shall cease to apply to any insurance producer if—

(A) the State insurance regulator renews the license of such producer in the State in which the license was suspended or revoked; or

(B) the suspension or revocation is subsequently overturned.

(b) AUTHORITY TO ESTABLISH MEMBERSHIP CRITERIA.—The Association shall have the authority to establish membership criteria that—

(2) do not unfairly limit the access of smaller agencies to the Association membership.

(c) ESTABLISHMENT OF CLASSES AND CATEGORIES.—

(1) CLASSES OF MEMBERSHIP.—The Association may establish separate classes of membership, with separate criteria, if the Association reasonably determines that performance of different duties requires different levels of education, training, or experience.

(2) CATEGORIES.—The Association may establish separate categories of membership for individuals and for other persons. The establishment of any such categories of membership shall be based either on the types of licensing categories that exist under State laws or on the aggregate amount of business handled by an insurance producer. No special categories of membership, and no distinct membership criteria, shall be established for members which are depository institutions or for their employees, agents, or affiliates.
(d) Membership Criteria.—

(1) In general.—The Association may establish criteria for membership which shall include standards for integrity, personal qualifications, education, training, and experience.

(A) the producer fails to meet the applicable membership criteria of the Association; or

(i) Office of Consumer Complaints.—

(1) In general.—The Association shall establish an office of consumer complaints that shall—

(A) receive and investigate complaints from both consumers and State insurance regulators related to members of the Association; and

(B) recommend to the Association any disciplinary actions that the office considers appropriate, to the extent that any such recommendation is not inconsistent with State law.

(2) Records and referrals.—The office of consumer complaints of the Association shall—

(A) maintain records of all complaints received in accordance with paragraph (1) and make such records available to the NAIC and to each State insurance regulator for the State of residence of the consumer who filed the complaint; and

(B) refer, when appropriate, any such complaint to any appropriate State insurance regulator.

(3) Telephone and other access.—The office of consumer complaints shall maintain a toll-free telephone number for the purpose of this subsection and, as practicable, other alternative means of communication with consumers, such as an Internet home page.

(B) Alternate Composition.—If any of the State insurance regulators described in subparagraph (A) declines to serve on the Board, the State insurance regulator with the next greatest total dollar amount of commercial-lines insurance in place, as determined by the NAIC as of the end of such period, shall serve as a member of the Board.

(C) Inoperability.—If fewer than 7 State insurance regulators accept appointment to the Board, the Association shall be established without NAIC oversight pursuant to section 332.

(d) Terms.—The term of each director shall, after the initial appointment of the members of the Board, be for 3 years, with one-third of the directors to be appointed each year.

(e) Board Vacancies.—A vacancy on the Board shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment of the initial Board for the remainder of the term of the vacating member.

(B) upon such later date as the Association may designate; or

(C) upon such earlier date as the NAIC may determine.

(3) Disapproval by the NAIC.—Notwithstanding paragraph (2), a proposed bylaw or amendment shall not take effect if, after public notice and opportunity to participate in a public hearing—

(A) the NAIC disapproves such proposal as being contrary to the public interest or contrary to the purposes of this subtitle and provides notice to the Association setting forth the reasons for such disapproval; or

(B) the NAIC finds that such proposal involves a matter of such significant public interest that public comment should be obtained, in which case it may, after notifying the Association in writing of such finding, require that the procedures set forth in subsection (b) be followed with respect to such proposal, in the same manner as if such proposed bylaw change were a proposed rule change within the meaning of such subsection.

(b) Adoption and Amendment of Rules.—

(C) EXTENSION OF TIME FOR CONSIDERATION.—The NAIC may extend the time for concluding any proceeding under subparagraph (A) for—

(i) not more than 60 days if the NAIC finds good cause for such extension and sets forth its reasons for so finding; or

(ii) such longer period as to which the Association consents.

(5) ALTERNATE PROCEDURE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any provision of this subsection other than subparagraph (B), a proposed rule or amendment relating to the administration or organization of the Association shall take effect—

(ii) Effect of reconsideration by the NAIC.—
Any action of the NAIC pursuant to clause (i) shall—

[SEC. 330. FUNCTIONS OF THE NAIC.]

(a) ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE.—Determinations of the NAIC, for purposes of making rules pursuant to section 328, shall be made after appropriate notice and opportunity for a hearing and for submission of views of interested persons.

(b) EXAMINATIONS AND REPORTS.—

MINORITY VIEWS

The Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002 (TRIA) authorized the creation of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program to ensure the availability and affordability of terrorism coverage. The Program contains several safeguards to limit taxpayer exposure and increase private sector participation. These safeguards include a $100 million program trigger, a 20 percent deductible requirement, a 15 percent insurer co-pay, a hard cap of $100 billion, and a recoupment mechanism.

Increasing the Program trigger five-fold will have a punitive effect on smaller, regional, and niche insurers who would be forced from the market. The dramatic increase will increase the potential exposure for companies, making terrorism coverage too great a risk for small and mid-sized companies to participate in the program. With fewer companies able to offer coverage, take-up rates may suffer and uninsured losses in the event of a terrorist attack may be greater, thus increasing taxpayer exposure. The increase will also disproportionately affect the workers' compensation market, which functions differently from other insurance markets, including property and casualty insurers. State workers' compensation statutes dictate that workers' compensation insurers cannot exclude or limit terrorism coverage. Because workers' compensation coverage for terrorism is mandatory for the vast majority of U.S. employers, carriers are unable to take advantage of the small insurer opt out included in the bill.

Increasing the program trigger from the current $100 million threshold would significantly increase potential exposure for workers' compensation carriers. This policy change would force them to limit their exposure by declining to cover employers faced with high terrorism risk—in some cases, many of the smaller workers' compensation insurers would be forced to pull completely out of certain regional markets to limit exposure. Those insurers that choose to continue to offer workers' compensation insurance coverage in and near perceived terror targets would severely jeopardize their financial stability and would likely face downward pressure from ratings agencies. This will force small workers' compensation carriers out of the market resulting in decreased competition. This will then lead to increased costs for employers, as well as reduced labor incomes and economic growth—while at the same time uninsured losses in the event of a terrorist attack will be greater, increasing pressure to the federal government to pay for those losses.

Bifurcating conventional terrorism and nuclear, biological, chemical, and radiological (NBCR) terrorism may bring uncertainty to the Program post-attack. Distinguishing between an NBCR and non-NBCR event may lead to practical challenges with the certification and claims process.
TRIA has been a resounding success. The Program has made terrorism coverage both available and affordable, all while costing taxpayers nothing. The Program also provides policyholders with the certainty they need to continue to develop, create jobs, and contribute to our economic growth. It is clear that such drastic reforms to TRIA do nothing to reduce taxpayer exposure or increase capacity, but only serve to phase-out the already limited backstop and leave our nation unprotected in the case of a terrorist attack.
