PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

On October 2, 2017, Representative Ted Budd introduced H.R. 3903 the “Encouraging Public Offerings Act of 2017,” which amends the Securities Act of 1933 to expand to all public companies certain provisions of Title I of the Jumpstart Our Business Startups (JOBS) Act that previously applied only to Emerging Growth Companies (EGCs).

H. R. 3903 permits issuers to submit to the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) for confidential review before publicly filing draft registration statements for an Initial Public Offering (IPO) and for follow-on offerings within one year of an IPO. Additionally, this bill allows all companies to “test the waters” before filing an IPO, which means the company may meet with qualified institutional buyers (QIBs) and other institutional accredited investors to gauge those investors’ interest in the offering.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The goal of H.R. 3903 is to encourage more companies to go public and expand provisions of Title I of the JOBS Act to allow all companies to submit confidential draft registration statements to the SEC and to “test the waters” by communicating directly with certain potential investors before filing an IPO.

Although small companies are at the forefront of technological innovation and job creation, they frequently face obstacles in obtaining funding in the capital markets. These obstacles often are a result of the disproportionately larger burden that securities regulations—written for large public companies—place on small companies when they seek to go public. The JOBS Act makes it easier for smaller companies to access the capital markets and recognizes that rigid provisions in the securities laws can serve as deterrent to small companies as they seek to raise equity capital. Signed into law on April 5, 2012, the bipartisan JOBS Act consisted of six bills that originated in the Financial Services Committee and help small companies obtain access to capital markets by lifting the burden of certain securities regulations.

By helping small companies obtain funding and go public, the JOBS Act has helped facilitate economic growth and job creation. Title I of the JOBS Act established a new category of issuers known as “Emerging Growth Companies”—or “EGCs.” EGCs must have less than $1 billion in annual revenues or $700 million in public float when they register with the SEC, and the law provides these EGCs with a five-year of an “On Ramp” to comply with certain regulatory requirements related to disclosure and reporting. Additionally, Title I allows for EGCs to “test the waters” by meeting with investors and explain their business structure before issuing an IPO. Biotech companies in particular have been vocal about the benefits that testing the waters provides, as it allows for additional time to explain to investors the complicated technologies, regulatory pathways, and complex product offerings of the company to encourage greater participation in the IPO. Title I of the JOBS Act also permits EGCs to confidentially submit draft registration statements to the SEC for nonpublic review before issuing an IPO. Allowing confidential filing of draft registration statements with the SEC allows companies to finalize their registration documents without the undue expectations from media scrutiny and allows companies to time their offering with the market before making their Form S-1 public and beginning an investor roadshow.

Even with these important advances, many small companies still cannot access the capital they need to grow their businesses and create jobs. According to one survey, 57 percent of respondents believe the current business financing environment is restricting growth opportunities and 49 percent of respondents believe it is restricting their ability to hire. While the JOBS Act has made it easier for small companies to go public, the JOBS Act alone has not been enough to entirely overcome the capital formation obstacles that many companies face as they attempt to go public.

Recognizing the benefit these JOBS Act provisions serve to fulfill its mission of facilitating capital formation, on June 29, 2017, the SEC extended the option to submit draft registration statements for IPOs and follow-on offerings within one year of an IPO to all companies (no longer limiting the option to EGCs). H.R. 3903 codifies this provision into statute and expands the “testing the waters” provision in Title I of the JOBS Act to apply to all companies. Expanding “testing the waters” provision will enable all companies to have the benefits of reaching out to QIBs and other institutional accredited investors to solicit interest before filing an IPO, without harming retail investors. An amendment offered by Rep. Budd, and adopted by the Committee, would allow the SEC to impose additional terms, conditions, or requirements regarding the expansion of these provisions beyond EGCs as is appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors.

In its report on Capital Markets mandated by President Trump’s February 3rd Executive Order, Treasury recommended that the SEC permit all companies to file drafts for IPOs confidentially and that companies other than EGCs be allowed to “test the waters” with potential investors who are QIBs or institutional accredited investors.

Enclosure.

H.R. 3903—Encouraging Public Offerings Act of 2017

Under current law, issuers of securities are generally required to register with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) prior to an initial public offering (IPO) of their securities for sale. Emerging growth companies are allowed to submit draft registration statements to the SEC for confidential review before publicly filing and also can submit draft registration statements for follow-on securities offerings within one year of an IPO. SEC's current policy guidance extends that allowance to all issuers of securities. H.R.

3903 would codify that policy guidance. Additionally, emerging growth companies are exempt from a prohibition on issuers of securities from communicating with certain potential investors about such securities without first registering them with the SEC. H.R. 3903 would expand that exemption to include all issuers of securities.

Based on an analysis of information from the SEC, CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 3903 would cost less than $500,000 to update the SEC's guidance. Moreover, the SEC is authorized to collect fees sufficient to offset its annual appropriation; therefore, CBO estimates that the net effect on discretionary spending would be negligible, assuming appropriation actions consistent with that authority.

Enacting H.R. 3903 would not affect direct spending or revenues; therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures do not apply.

CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 3903 would not increase net direct spending or on-budget deficits in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2028.

H.R. 3903 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA).

If the SEC increases fees to offset the costs associated with implementing the bill, H.R. 3903 would increase the cost of an existing mandate on private entities required to pay those assessments. CBO estimates that the incremental cost of the mandate would be small and would fall well below the annual threshold for private-sector mandates established in UMRA ($156 million in 2017, adjusted annually for inflation).

The CBO staff contacts for this estimate are Stephen Rabent (for federal costs) and Logan Smith (for private-sector mandates). The estimate was approved by H. Samuel Papenfuss, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

An adjusted rate prescribed under paragraph (2) shall take effect on the first day of the fiscal year to which such rate applies.

(5) PUBLICATION.—The Commission shall publish in the Federal Register notices of the rate applicable under this subsection and under sections 13(e) and 14(g) for each fiscal year not later than August 31 of the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year to which such rate applies, together with any estimates or projections on which such rate is based.

(6) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection:

An issuer that was an emerging growth company at the time it submitted a confidential registration statement or, in lieu thereof, a publicly filed registration statement for review under this subsection but ceases to be an emerging growth company thereafter shall continue to be treated as an emerging market growth company for the purposes of this subsection through the earlier of the date on which the issuer consummates its initial public offering pursuant to such registration statement or the end of the 1-year period beginning on the date the company ceases to be an emerging growth company.]

(1) PRIOR TO INITIAL PUBLIC OFFERING.—Any issuer, prior to its initial public offering date, may confidentially submit to the Commission a draft registration statement, for confidential nonpublic review by the staff of the Commission prior to public filing, provided that the initial confidential submission and all amendments thereto shall be publicly filed with the Commission not later than 15 days before the date on which the issuer conducts a road show (as defined under section 230.433(h)(4) of title 17, Code of Federal Regulations) or, in the absence of a road show, at least 15 days prior to the requested effective date of the registration statement.

[(2)] (4) CONFIDENTIALITY.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Commission shall not be compelled to disclose any information provided to or obtained by the Commission pursuant to this subsection. For purposes of section 552 of title 5, United States Code, this subsection shall be considered a statute described in subsection (b)(3)(B) of such section 552.
